At the Woman's Club.

Miss Zelle Minor proved a most efficient chairman of the musical yesterday afternoon at the Woman's Club, and the program selected was a very pleasing one. Miss Minor was enthusiastically received by her audience. She is an accomplished musician and prominent in musical circles here.

Assisting Miss Minor were little Miss Maria Adkins, violinist, and Miss Margery Groce, of Dallas, Tex., mezzo-soprano.

Little Miss Adkins was greeted with a round of applause, and her encore, Beethoven's Minuet, was one of the features of the afternoon. She is a musician of no little talent and her technique wonderfully developed for one of her years.

Miss Groce has a most attractive personality combined with a charming voice that will enable her very soon to take her place in very exclusive musical circles of the country. She is a pupil of the Woman's College and graduates there this year, having studied under Mrs. Melvin A. Martin. Her encores, a little French song, "Vous Dansez Marguise," and "By the Zuyder Zee" were most enthusiastically applauded.

VALLEY STOCK MAY BE PUT ON MARKET

Corporation Commission Not Likely to Care for Interest of Baltimore.

FARMERS SHOW INTEREST

Good Attendance at Institutes. Requisition Issued for Jackson.

If the city of Baltimore is being guided in its disposition of its stock in the Valley Railroad of Virginia by an idea that its ownership may influence the State Corporation Commission in the way of rules for train service, it is likely to be disappointed. At all events, that is the impression here.

It is not customary for the commission to consider the individual stockholder in public service corporations. That body is interested only in the said stockholder complying with the law. The fact that a city or an individual owns a large block of stock does not taken cognizance of when it comes to rules. The commission, so far as is known, would not depart from its former procedure should it take into account the desire of a municipality to build up its business.

Forty years ago Baltimore subscribed for $1,000,000 of the stock of the Valley Railroad, the object of course, being to bring trade to that city from the Valley of Virginia. It is believed that Baltimore succeeded in securing a good return from this investment, indirectly, down to 1898 when the receivers of the Baltimore and Ohio cut the Valley Railroad off from Baltimore by surrendering the lease of the connecting link from Harrisonburg to Strasburg to the Southern.

Not Paying Deal.

A Baltimore newspaper commenting on the situation, says that "since the road was detached from the Baltimore and Ohio system and from direct connection with the city, it is reasonably certain that the investment of $1,000,000 has not been profitable in any respect."

Now it is argued by members of the Baltimore City Council that the stock should be sold. It is believed that $400,000 may be realized from the $1,000,000. "Of course," says the newspaper, "it is greatly to be desired that the city should get so much money for an unproductive investment, and one which does not promise to be productive. But if the sale of the stock should in any way render it more difficult for the city to recover or hold its trade in the Valley, or if the ownership of the stock by the city in any way disposes of the Corporation Commission of Virginia to compel the Southern Railroad to grant through trains from Lexington and the lower Valley to Baltimore, then the city should not sell its stock."

Some time ago the State Corporation Commission had under consideration a petition regarding train service on the line connecting Baltimore and Strasburg. Therefore, it had been necessary for a passenger, say from Staunton to Harper's Ferry, to change at Harrisonburg and again at Strasburg. The commission, after considering a through train to be put on the line, to be carried over the Baltimore and Ohio to Harrisonburg, there to be delivered to the Southern for transportation to Strasburg and to Alexandria. Thus through connection was established from the lower Valley to Washington, this being, perhaps, the cause of complaints from Baltimore of the diversion of trade from that city to the national capital.

ARKANSAS

LADY SAVED

Arkansas Lady Says Every Sick Woman in the Country Should

Take the Time-Tested Woman's Tonic, Cardui.

Alma, Ark.—"It is a pleasure to me to write in praise of your wonderful medicine, Cardui," writes Mrs. William Hilliard, of this city, "for it saved my life at one time, and I can't praise it enough. I had suffered for five years with irregularities, but after trying Cardui I found relief, although my doctor said he had done all he could. I wish I could praise Cardui to every sick lady in the United States."

What makes many American women so nervous?

It is the peculiar weakness of their constitutions, which cannot stand the strenuous social and household duties that American women undertake. As a result, they break down and their nervous systems are disarranged.

This break-down can be prevented, because Cardui has built up thousands of weak, nervous women into healthy, hearty specimens of their sex, and will surely do the same for you.

As a medicine, as a tonic for weak, tired, worn out women, Cardui is time-tested, safe and reliable. It is worth trying.

Get a bottle of Cardui from your drugist to-day.

PRISONER IS SHOT TO DEATH BY GUARD

Wound Inflicted When Convict Makes Break for Liberty.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]

Richmond, N. C., May 23.—A prison guard shot to death convict J. L. Fox today, in order to prevent the escape of a number of convicts, who had evidently conspired to break away from their guard, even at the cost of killing a guard or so. Fox was serving twelve years for manslaughter from Anson county. He escaped from the prison nearly a year ago by making up a dummy that he left in his cell to fool the guards, on June 7. The dummy was an escapee, the dummy being tucked away snugly in the cell cot. Recently Fox was recaptured in New South Wales, where he was a young white man, and is said to have killed a woman.

The convicts, with three guards, were grading the rifle range, northwest of the city. Fox went to get off a wagon, and he seized Guard Honeycutt's gun at the same time showing him off the wagon and cutting at him with an ugly-looking double-edged knife that he was secretly carrying. At the same time, he shot at the guard, who was sentenced to thirty years from Scotland county, seized Guard Hayes in an attempt to get out of the cell. The guard, Smith, fired at Fox, inflicting a wound. Hayes was equal to the assault, and order was quickly restored. Some of the convicts, coming to the aid of the guards in the striking experience, Guard Smith wounded Fox twice and Hayes once, three shots being fired.
